The Eugene Review proposes to "ask the editor of the OREGONIAN if he thinks the men of this day wiser than the sages of 1798, if we have at this day in the Administration, one man who is worthy to be ranked with the great authors of the resolutions he not only condemns but ridicules?"

We frankly confess that we do not think all the wisdom of the Republic died out with Jefferson and Madison, who were well enough in their way, and for the times in which they lived, though we think that the best and most patriotic judgment of the nation must admit that they both proved their weakness as sagacious statesmen, by justifying resolutions containing doctrines utterly subversive of the integrity of the Union, and which have become the professed and acknowledged foundation of nullification, secession and all the forms of treason, for there never was a nullifier, secessionist or traitor in the land, who did not go and get at once his political bible in those resolutions—the greatest curse which the country has known, except slavery—and they were made solely to enable the "peculiar institution" to extend its power and to control the land Neither Madison or Jefferson intended that such should be their effect both of these old patriots, long before they died, confessed their dislike to slavery as an enemy to the institutions of freedom, and as the probable and dangerous cause of sectional quarrel, and, perhaps, war The democratic party of the present day, however, forgets the motive and the opposition to slavery on the part of those old founders of the Government, and seek to use the resolutions, not as a means of defending the Government when assailed, but rather as a weapon of war in aid of secession and treason In this, it widely departs from the counsels of the authors, whom the Review affects to admire, and becomes what they would have detested—the friend and sympathizer with crime and insurrection.

As to the last part of the inquiry of the Review, while readily admitting the great political abilities of the "great authors," we should be very unwilling to believe that we should not be able to find their equals in this generation of statesmen We believe Mr Lincoln, in many respects, far superior to Madison, who was quite as bitterly denounced during the war with Great Britain, as he now is Mr Madison was doubtless a more learned statesman, for he had enjoyed far superior educational advantages, but in all that constitutes the practical ability to meet grave emergencies, and to grapple with and gain mastery over vital and national issues, we have no doubt that history will award to the conductor of the "noble war against rebellion and for freedom," a position far above that assigned to the manager of the last war with Great Britain We are not unwilling, either, to compare many of the Union leaders of the nation with any of the old Virginians, whose boast has been that they wrote the infamous resolutions of '98 S P Chase, Pitt Fessenden and Sumner, with a host of the liberty champions of this day, will achieve a fame in the Republic of Freedom now in course of building, which will shine with brighter and grander rays than any that surrounds the names of those who fixed slavery upon the nation in its youth, and thus brought war upon us and all our present woes

General Wild, commanding at Norfolk, Va , has ordered that every fourth dog be killed—the executions to be done by the Provost Marshals He s the man we want sent to California

The second prize in the Medical Department of Columbia College, New York City, at the late commencement exercises, was carried off by Platon Vallejo, a native Californian

THE PRESIDENT'S PIN ON IDAHO—The Washington correspondent of the St Paul Pioneer writes thus

(The Capt Fisk referred to, being the noisy adventurer who leads the Northern emigrant escort.)

I was somewhat premature in announcing Capt Fisk s lecture on 'Idaho [illegible] several [illegible] the first of which is that he didn t arrive here until ten days afterwards, the other reasons I will give in my next letter They are all good and sufficient ones

The Captain had an interview with President Lincoln the other day He was introduced by Bill Murray The President wanted to know whether Idaho was any relation to Ho [illegible] one that thirsteth The Captain said to the [illegible] that was [illegible] the population of that country were the thirstiest set of cusses he ever saw

At this interview the Captain presented President Lincoln with a magnificent piece of gold about the size of a pea Speeches were made on both sides which I will give in my next Murray, in the exultation of the moment and with the natural effusion of a generous heart gave the President and Capt Fisk free passes over the St. Paul and Pacific Rail road for six months'

That specimen "of the size of a pea," must have astonished Mr Lincoln and we shall look with interest for the speeches which such a wonderful presentation must have prompted We received, last fall a long letter from an emigrant, showing up this ' Capt Fisk ' most unmercifully ; but supposing the statements must be exaggerated we suppressed it We now have other facts, from reliable sources, which make us believe he is very much a humbug, as indeed, we are inclined, is all this emigrant escort business as now managed

ARMY RADICALISM—The St Louis Democrat contained an interesting account of a celebration in that city on March 10th, of the battle and victory of Pea Ridge, whence we quote as follows

Gen McNeil responded, and in the course of his remarks said that hereafter the elective franchise should be extended to all who fight for the country, without regard to nationality or color [Gens Gray and Rosecrans—'That s right that s right] The foreigners among us who in the hour of our country s peril took out their exemption papers on the plea of alienage, should never be allowed to cast a vote at any election

Gen Rosecrans said he fully concurred in what had been said about black soldiers "Gen McNeil has told you that he thought that every black man who fought for the country should have a vote, so do I, so do I." He said he had a black man as his servant (Samuel Marshal) who had won his freedom by fighting for the country at Fort Moultrie in South Carolina So we have the example of the South itself in freeing slaves who fight for the country Gen Rosecrans gave his views of a reconstruction of the Union He said that whenever a State passes an act renouncing its allegiance to the Government, we are obliged to recognize it as the act of the State —that it has abdicated—and no 200 men in such State can act for the whole The people still remain citizens of the United States, and are to be governed as citizens of a Territory until there is a loyal population sufficient to form a State, and be re admitted into the Union 'I am not in favor of a central despotism, but of the unity of the nation and the maintenance of the General Government When a citizen wants to expatriate himself, he can do so by the consent of his sovereign I want Congress to pass an act to allow any citizen to expatriate himself, and to declare its assent to such expatriation, such citizen never more to vote until renaturalized."

The General spoke in glowing terms of the conduct of the Missouri troops in the Army of the Cumberland, frequently appealing to Col Conrad and other officers to verify his statements The Army of the Cumberland crossed the Alps of Tennessee, but did not find the river Po or the fertile plains of Italy to bivouac upon Previous to the battle of Chickamauga, he telegraphed to Gen. Halleck to know whether any portion of the rebel army of Virginia had been sent southward, and Gen Halleck replied that no troops of Lee s army had been sent in that direction except a few regiments for Charleston ! [Cries of Shame! Shame! from the officers] In consequence of this false information the army of the Cumberland encountered superior numbers, for Longstreet, from Lee's army, was there with over 20,000 men, and the whole force of the enemy was at least 93,000, while the Union forces were not more than 55,000 Still the Army of the Cumberland held its ground, and the position taken is still maintained.

WASHINGTON, May 2d—In the Senate, to day, a bill granting pre-emption on certain lands in California passed. A bill regulating the foreign coasting trade on the Northern Northeastern and North western frontiers also passed The Internal Revenue Bill, which passed the House on Friday night, April 29th, was received from the House and referred to the Committee on Finance

The House took up the resolution of Harding of Kentucky, offered last December declaring that the Union is not dissolved and whenever rebellion in any of the seceded States shall be put down, either by force or voluntary submission to the authority of the Constitution and laws, each State shall be restored to all its rights under the Constitution, including the right to control its own domestic institutions

Harding claimed that whoever voted against the resolution placed himself in the position of saying that the Union is dissolved, as none but revolutionists, disunionists or Secessionists would oppose it.

The resolution was tabled by a vote of 67 to 56

Franks of New York presented a resolution from the Legislature of New York affirming that President Lincoln s proclamation declaring that the abolishment of slavery was necessary, was statesmanlike and constitutional and should be the law of the land, and requesting the representatives of New York to support an amendment to the Constitution prohibiting slavery in any State The resolution was referred to the Judiciary Committee

The House then took up the resolution of Wadsworth, of Kentucky declaring that powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved respectively to the States or the people and that the Executive can neither directly nor indirectly exercise any powers thus reserved or obstruct the exercise thereof by the people.

Cox of Ohio, moved to lay the resolution on the table in order to get a square vote on it. The motion was disagreed to by 118 in the negative Cox now asked for a vote on the resolution, which he said merely affirmed the language of the Constitution, but the House referred it to the select committee on rebellious States

BEECHER SAYS DON'T BE DECEIVED —Rev Henry Ward Beecher rather startled his hearers at the Plymouth Church, in Brooklyn, in a eulogy of the rebel troops, in the course of a sermon designed to show that the price of liberty was not only eternal vigilance, but eternal self sacrifice 'Where ex claimed the speaker, shall we find such heroic self denial such up bearing under physical discomfort, such patience in poverty, in distress in absolute want, as we find in the Southern armies ? They fight better in a bad cause than you do in a good one they fight better for a passion than you do for a sentiment We believe them to be misguided, but we must do them the credit of saying they fight well and bear up under trouble nobly they suffer and do not complain they go in rags but do not rebel they are in earnest for their personal liberty they believe in it and if they can they mean to get it Beecher also denied that slavery was not dead "Dead" he exclaimed 'we know that within the lines of the frontier army there are yet three millions of slaves. As yet we learn that they are docile, amenable to the will of their masters, patient and subservient Don t be deceived

HEENAN USED UP —The New York correspondent of the Call says that the last steamer brought private news from London from which it appears likely John C Heenan, the 'Benicia Boy," will never be apt to recover from the alleged "drugging ' he suffered at the hands of King s friends, to enable King to win the victory He is now subject to convulsions, and suddenly falls down in the street in fits, while out walking His race is run, they say. His day is over He talks of returning home, to California, to die

NEW YORK, May 5—A special dispatch to the World dated headquarters Army of the Potomac 4th inst says Orders to march were issued from Gen Grant s headquarters yesterday morning It was disseminated throughout the army at 2 o clock [illegible] Gen Gregg s cavalry division, accompanied by a portion of the canvas pontoon train moved yesterday afternoon towards [illegible] Soon after midnight that division established a crossing The 3d cavalry [illegible] portion of the canvas [illegible] and also to establish a crossing [illegible] 6 miles above there It is reported at this hour that both efforts were successful The advance of the 2d corps [illegible] broke camp at midnight and moved down to the Stevensburg and Richardsonville road, [illegible] The entire corps was on the march before 4 o clock A M, in the same direction, and expected to effect a crossing soon after daylight. The Fifth Corps under Maj Gen Warren commenced moving at midnight The advance consisting of two divisions of infantry and a portion of artillery, passed through Stevensburg at midnight closely followed by the remainder of the corps all marching towards Germania ford The Fifth corps was closely followed by the 7th, under Gen Sedgwick which quitted camp at [illegible] o clock, A M The 5th and 6th corps are understood to be crossing the Rapidan at Germania ford The entire movement resolves itself into crossing the Rapidan at fords towards the right flank of the enemy After crossing the line will be nearly parallel with the river between Orange Court House and Chancellorsville A movement is under way at present (and there is a probability it will be successfully accomplished without severe opposition by Lee so [illegible] this bold push must be more or less a surprise). A cavalry skirmish and artillery duel are likely to make up this fighting unless the enemy contests the advance in force

NEW YORK, May 6—A special dispatch to the World dated Washington May 5th says There is no doubt now, from intelligence received from Bolton Station that Lee has entirely abandoned his line on the Rapidan and with his army is retreating from the south bank of that stream to Orange Springs and is destined either for the entrenchments at Richmond or for a position at Hanover Court House There was no indication of a rebel advance in the Valley of Virginia and in fact Lee's general retreat back to the position he formerly occupied at Mine Run, seems clearly established.

The World further says passengers who arrived in this city from Baltimore last evening, state that information had been received there from rebel sources, as well as from Norfolk and Fortress Monroe that Gen W F Smith, with a large army disembarked on the south side of James River, not far from Fort Darling His object was of course, a matter of mere speculation It might be a feint to prevent the rebels from sending reinforcements to Lee, but it was earnestly meant that Fort Darling and Petersburg were to be captured and that Richmond should be cut off from railroad communication with North Carolina and the South If the news is correct, and it is generally believed in Baltimore, the occupation of West Point last Monday, was merely to deceive the enemy, still, all is unauthentic rumor and Smith s army may be destined for West Point to co operate with the extreme left of Meade s army

The Times' special says Culpepper is being strongly fortified, and will be used as a depot for stores

It is reported here to day that a strong column under Couch and Sigel is marching from Winchester up Shenandoah valley and is a co operating column destined eventually to cut the Virginia and Tennessee railroad, while Butler's force or part of it will cut the Southern railroad to or near Petersburg—thus severing all railroad connection between Richmond At the South Gen Butler took the field in person at the head of the army on the Peninsula yesterday, and his host is marshalled by such officers as Gens W F Smith, Gilmore Terry and Weitzel The transports are conveyed by a strong squadron of monitors and gunboats up the river to the very gates and back doors of Richmond. Perhaps the ironclads may once more assail the rebel batteries that line the James and Rappahannock There is a feeling that there is a desperate work before this army, but there is nerve and strength for it. The ironclads lie in still water off Newport News Gun boats are in communication

A dispatch from Gen Grant to an officer here says that 48 hours would determine whether he was to have a battle on the Rapidan or under the works of Richmond

Grant s dispatch was written on the 4th

A special to the Post says the rebels are concentrating an immense number of troops, but our leaders profess to be entirely satisfied with the situation All they want is a collision of the army of the Potomac with Lee s troops

The World's Washington dispatch says that Gen Burnside s command is acting as a reserve to Gen Grant s army

A letter received from Burnside s headquarters at Warrenton Junction, says the 4th corps was there, but expected to move soon

A letter of the 4th reports that the rebel cavalry attacked our pickets at Suffolk, on Saturday, and were badly thrashed by the 5th Pennsylvania, suffering heavy loss in killed and wounded

There is no mail from Washington at present The latest information received from there is that our army has passed safely through the wilderness, but nothing further is known of an onward movement Rumors of fighting prevail but nothing can be relied upon as they are merely conjectures Up to 7 o clock on Wednesday evening, no fighting had taken place There are troops remaining on this side of the Rapidan, but it would be improper to state their exact location They include some if not all the colored soldiers

Much of the rolling stock of the railroad has been sent back to Washington as there is now no further use for it

PHILADELPHIA, May 6 —A Baltimore special from Washington says the army of the Potomac has passed the wilderness which includes the old Chancellorsville battle ground east of Lee's army and was pressing on until it reached the open plain east of the wilderness Our informant states that an opinion was entertained by officers that Lee was still in his works about Orange Court House Many believe that it will be found that Grant has flanked him and is between his army and the works of Richmond

REV DR BRECKINRIDGE ON LOYALTY—Rev. Robert J Breckinridge writes to the Frankfort (Ky) Commonwealth

In my opinion the great need of our State at this moment is a strong and general movement of the loyal people that will put the idea and duty of the support of the nation and the Government clear above every secondary idea, so that every truly patriotic man may rally to it irrespective of all divisions among them on other points no matter how important those other points might be in other circumstances If this can be done the integrity of the loyal party in this State can be preserved and the State will remain in its hands under all ulterior events If it cannot be done the loyal party runs the risk of such divisions in itself, as to put every thing at hazard now and hereafter What we need is prompt and courageous action of the real loyal mass, irrespective of extreme factions right or left one side or the other

A letter [illegible] came down the Neuse river [illegible] Newbern and the [illegible] last [illegible] never be recovered again The river has fallen and in some places is not navigable

A large rebel force is between Newbern and Kingston

Maj Gen Peck has been relieved of his command in North Carolina and is succeeded by Brig Gen J N Palmer An attack on Newbern is expected at an early day

MEMPHIS May 6—The steamer White Cloud, from Alexandria May 1st, has arrived Gen Banks and army are still there The rebels were reported to be [illegible] miles distant and skirmishing occurred daily

The Hastings was sunk above Alexandria, and the Champion No 3 and 4 with submarine pumps on board had been attacked by a rebel battery 40 miles below Grand Ecore, and burned.

Gen Banks continues to be very unpopular with the army and matters look bad

Gen Hunter had returned to New Orleans

Gen A. J Cook s division crossed Red river at Alexandria, on the 30th to look after Harrison s rebels who were hovering on that bank

The Metropolis arrived at Memphis on the 4th, from New Orleans, with the intelligence that the rebels were concentrating at several points on both sides of the river

There was considerable excitement all along the river, from Natchez to Vicksburg, as it was rumored that the enemy were advancing on Port Hudson in two columns with 26 pieces of artillery.

WASHINGTON, May 6 —Official dispatches received at the War Department announce the advance of Gen Butler with his command, and his successful landing at City Point, Va.

The Government has information via Fortress Monroe, that Beauregard is at Petersburg, Va, with 30 000 men

WASHINGTON, May 7—The Republican has the following The Government has information to this morning that on Wednesday night Grant s whole army was entirely across the Rapidan. It had reached the plain a little beyond the old Chancellorville battle ground, when Lee marched out of his works and offered battle which was at once accepted, the fight became fierce and lasted until dark, the enemy being forced back some distance with great loss, leaving most of their killed and wounded in our hands The two armies lay on their arms all night on Wednesday At daylight on Thursday the battle opened again and raged with great fury on both sides until dark when it was found the enemy had been forced back in the two days fight about two miles and a half, leaving heaps of killed and wounded on the field Various estimates have been made of the number slaughtered, but at this moment it is useless to speak on the subject, On Friday morning at five o'clock the forces marshalled for another conflict Grant was moving on Lee s works up to this time Burnsides corps numbering 30 000 men have not taken part in the battle, but at half past five were marching into position, to engage in the bloody contest of the three days battle Of the result of this day s fight, we have no report to the moment of going to press The battle commenced at six o clock in the morning and unless Lee received reinforcements equal to Burnsides corps, the battle of Friday must have proved terribly disastrous to him

WASHINGTON, May 7 —Butler is reported to be marching on Richmond

The Republican says that this fact leads to the belief that no troops can be spared from there to reinforce Lee.

NEW YORK, May 8 —Fortress Monroe dispatches to the Herald state that Butler is in possession of Petersburg

The Tribune s special says that Grant has hurled his entire force against the rebel army, and on Friday Lee was driven three miles, leaving 3,000 killed and 10 000 wounded in our hands, and Grant master of the field Lee is in full retreat, and Grant is in hot pursuit.

The Tribune s special also says that Government has received news that Sherman is fighting his way through Tunnel Hill successfully, and is pressing upon Dalton The enemy are falling back, leaving their dead and wounded in our hands

There has been no news received from the Peninsula thus far

About Fish.—The fishermen of Victoria have been on a "strike," and after "standing out" for the restoration of a time honored privilege of depositing their dead and rejected fish anywhere on the beach that suited them which had been broken up by the magistrate some of them have brought their tackle over to the Columbia river, and do not intend to furnish the Victoria people with any more fish until their "privileges" shall have been restored Those that have arrived are Italians, but their fishing does not seem to overstock our market The last arrival of the Couch brought but few salmon, and it is said they were very scarce

Beautiful Bouquet —Mr Henry Martin placed upon our table last evening a vase containing one of the finest collections of flowers we have seen in Oregon, very beautifully arranged. A full description would require us to give a floral catalogue, and then its splendid fragrance would not be appreciated Mr Martin has an agency of the excellent and flourishing garden and floral nursery of Mr Miller, near Milwaukie, and proposes to supply the ladies and gentlemen of this city with the delightful productions of that charming paradise.

A Powerful Machine —The Macadamized Road Company have steam machinery em[illegible] in [illegible] king rock for their road, which is of sufficient power to literally crush the [illegible] kind of boulders, reducing them to pebbles, but it proves not strong enough to grind iron sledges to the same degree of fineness. Curiosities of the English Language

THE HUMOROUS VEIN

An individual is told of as doing business in one of the markets, who is down on customers who don't speak properly "What's eggs this morning?" says a customer "Eggs, of course," says the dealer "I mean how do they go?" "Go where?" "Sho—!" says the customer, getting in a fury "what for eggs?" "Money, money, sir! or good indorsed credit!" says the dealer "Don't you understand the English language, sir?" says the customer "Not as you mix and mingle it I don't!" responded the egg merchant "What—is—the—price—per—dozen—for—your—eggs?" "Ah now you talk," says the dealer "Sixteen cents per dozen is the price, sir!" They traded But it appears that another customer who, on asking "what's eggs this morning?" was answered "eggs, of course," responded, "Well I am glad of that, for the last I got of you were half chickens"

A Dutchman had two pigs—a large one and a small one The smallest being the oldest, he was trying to explain to a customer, and did it in this wise "The little pig is the biggest" Upon which his vrow, assuming to correct him, said "You will excuse him, he no speak as good English as me—he no means the little pig is the piggest, but te young little pig is te oldest"

In a Dutch translation of Addison's Cato, the words "Plato, thou reasonest well," are rendered "Just so, you are very right, Mynheer Plato"

"The dear little things," said an old nurse of her mistress' twin children, "one looks so much like both, you can't tell t'other from which!"

The contradictions of pronunciation in the termination "ough" are amusingly displayed in the following lines

"Wife make me some dumplings of dough;
They re better than meal for my cough
Pray let them be boiled till hot through,
But not till they re heavy or tough
Now I must be off to the plough
And the boys when they ve had enough
Must keep the flies off with a bough
While the old mare drinks at the trough"

A report of a prize fight must be a very interesting thing for a foreigner to translate—A very simple report of a fight, in which some "game" individual mounted the ladder of fame from the area of the prize ring by a certain number of "rounds," tells us that the combatants struck each other with the mawleys and bunches of fives upon the head, the nut, the cone, the conk, the canister, the noddle, the mug, the knowledge box, the nose, the sneezer, the snorer the snuffer, the snuff tray, the nozzle, the mazzard, the eyes, the ogles, the optics, the peepers, the mouth, the kisser, the whistler, the orator-trap, drawing the blood, the claret, the ruby, the crimson, the home brewed, the gravy, and in several instances knocked off his pins, his pegs, his stumps and his foundation, to say nothing of boring, fibbing and sending him to grass! Who wants the belt?

So it must be interesting to a foreigner who relies on his dictionary, to hear the talk of "dead beats," "small potatoes—few in a hill," "bully boys," "big things", and things that one "can't see" The initials "O K," which mean "Oll Korrect," are at least twenty years old

INGENIOUS USE OF LANGUAGE.

Let us notice some of the ingenious things that can be done with the language The repetition of the same class of rhymes is quite common, but the following epistles may be readable

MADAM
Most worthy of estimation after long consideration
And much meditation, of the great reputation,
You p... my admiration and if such obvlation
Is worthy of observation and can obtain consideration,
It will be aggrandisation beyond all calculation,
To the joy and exultation
Of yours, SANS DISSIMULATION

SIR
I have perused your oration with much deliberation,
And little consternation at the great infatuation
Of your weak imagination to show such veneration
On so slight a foundation but after examination
And serious contemplation, I suppose your animation
Was the fruit of recreation, or had sprung from ostentation
To display your education by odd enumeration
Or rather multiplication of words of the same termination
Though of great variation in each respective signification
Not without disputation, your laborious application
To so tedious an occupation deserves commendation
And thinking imitation a sufficient gratification,
I am, without hesitation,
Yours, MARY MODERATION

Palindromes or lines that read the same backward and forward, are frequent in Latin or Greek, but it is quite difficult to construct them in English. The lawyer's motto, "Si nummi immunis," is a good specimen of a Latin one The best in English is Adam's first observation to Eve, "Madam I'm Adam" The one by Taylor, the water poet, "Lewd I did live and evil did I dwel," lacks completeness in two points

Here is a sentence of thirty two words, which some ingenious child has constructed with just the letters found in the word madden "Ida, a maiden, a mean man named Ned Dean, and Media, a mad dame, made me mend a die and a dime, and mind a mine in a dim den in Maine"

The following queer sentence originated, like many other odd things, in one of our monthly magazines

"Sator arepo tenet opera rotas"

1 This spells backward and forward all the same

2 Then taking all the first letters of each word, spells the first word

3 Then, taking all the second letters of each word, spells the second word

4 Then all the third, and so on through the fourth and fifth

5 Then, commencing with the last letter of each word, spells the last

6 Then the next to the last of each word, and so on through

Here is the way a grammarian conjugated the increasing heat

"Hot, hotter, hottest, hottentot hottentotter, hottentotest, hottentotissimo, hottentotissimus, hot as an oven, hot as two ovens, hot as four ovens, hot as seven ovens hot!"

A gentleman who could not pronounce the letter R was asked to read the following:

"Robert gave Richard a rap in the ribs
For roasting the rabbit so rare"

He evaded the difficulty in the following ingenious manner

Bobby gave Dicky a thump in the side
For cooking the bunny so little

We will close by relating a marvel in the way of logic done by Granger He was a remarkably ugly man but contended that he was the handsomest thing in the world He proved it thus "The handsomest part of the world," said he "is Europe of Europe, France of France Paris of Paris the University of the University the College of ... in the College of ... the handsomest room is mine in my room I am the handsomest thing, ergo, I am the handsomest thing in the world —N Y Evening Post

WOMEN'S CRITICISM OF WOMEN'S DRESS Women criticise you not unjustly perhaps, but relentlessly They judge you in detail men only in the whole If your dress is neat well fitting and well toned men will not notice it, except a few milliners and a few others who ought to be and to whose opinion we pay no regard If you will only sit still hold up your head and speak when you are spoken to you can be very comfortable I do not mean that men cannot find, do not appreciate female brilliancy but if you are a good listener and in the right respective mood you can spend an hour pleasantly without it—But a woman finds out in the first three minutes that the fringe on your dress is not a match In four, she has discovered that the silk of your sleeves is frayed at the edge In five that the binding of the heel of your boot is worn out By the sixth she has satisfactorily ascertained what she suspected the first moment she set eyes on you that you trimmed your bonnet yourself The seventh assures her that your collar is only "imitation" and when you part, at the end of ten minutes she has calculated, with tolerable accuracy the cost of your dress, has lowered her mental eye glass at all your innocent little subterfuges, and knows to a dead certainty your past history, present circumstances and your future prospect

Well, what harm if she does? None in particular It is only being stretched on the rack a little while You have no reason to be ashamed, and you are not ashamed Your boots are only beginning to be shabby and we all know the transitory nature of galloon Your fringe is too dark but you ransacked the city and did your best, "angels could do no more" You trimmed your bonnet yourself and saved $2, which was just what you intended to do "The means were worthy, and the end was won" Your lace is not real by the cant of the shopkeepers but it is real—real cotton, real linen, real silk, or whatever it may be, and you never pretended it was Honiton or point, and if lace is soft and fine, and sets off the throat and wrists prettily, I do not see why it may not be just as well made in America for two cents a yard as in Paris for $2 or $200 In fact this whole matter of lace is something entirely beyond my comprehension Why I have seen women who, in the ordinary affairs of life were neat to a fault fall down and worship a bit of dingy old yellow lace, that looked fit for nothing but the wash tub, and when remonstrated with excuse themselves by saying, "Why, it is fifty or five hundred years old," which may be a very lucid explanation but I cannot say I fully understand and appreciate it

My friend Colorado de Halfdozenraw attended a fashionable rout upon the other night, at which Mademoiselle Dulcet Warblerio discoursed the ever beautiful song of the Irish Emigrant Turning to Colonel (I call him Colonel because he is one of Curtin's patriotic shoddy contractors) turning to Colonel I asked benignantly—

"Did you ever sit upon the stile, my cherub?"

"Never but once," responded Colonel, in a melancholy strain "never but once It was upon the latest style—my wife's bonnet And I confess that it was anything but stylish afterwards"

"Why did Joseph's brethren cast him into the pit?" asked a Sabbath teacher of his class "Because," replied one young lady, "they thought it a good opening for the young man" Commentators are requested not to avail themselves of the above explanation, as a copy right has been secured

Certificate of Dr Hayes

It is well known that the medicinal effects of Protoxide of Iron is lost by even a very brief exposure to air and that to maintain a solution of Protoxide of Iron without further oxidation has been deemed impossible

In the Peruvian Syrup this desirable point is attained by COMBINATION IN A WAY BEFORE UNKNOWN and this solution may replace all the proto carbonates citrates and tartrates of the Materia Medica A A HAYES M D

IODINE WATER.

IODINE WATER IS THE MOST IMPORTANT DIScovery of modern chemistry and it is impossible to over-estimate its influence as a remedial agent Iodine has been considered the most useful article in Materia Medica and many of the great scientific and practical chemists and physicians have investigated its effects upon the human system It is to act upon the

LIVER, KIDNEYS,
DIGESTIVE ORGANS AND GLANDULAR SYSTEM,

and to have great control over

SCROFULOUS AFFECTIONS.

Notwithstanding the zeal and ability which have been devoted to its investigation it remained almost useless, until Dr Henry Anders a physician and chemist of New York after years of patient labor and experiment, discovered a chemical process which enabled him to dissolve without a solvent. This considered impossible by the scientific world is attested by certificates of analysis from Dr J R Chilton of this city, and Prof Booth U S Mint Philadelphia The importance of this discovery was so highly appreciated by the Faculty that it was published in the Medical Journals and its use recommended to practitioners (see "American Medical Monthly," July 6, 1856, page 76)

This valuable medicine is now available to the public for the cure of Scrofula in all its manifold forms, Consumption, Cancer Heart Liver and Kidney Diseases Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Nervous Affections Dyspepsia, Bronchitis, etc

AS A TONIC

Its operation is evinced by strengthening the digestive organs and increased nutrition of the body is the result of the employment of Iodine The patient recovers flesh strength and color hitherto pale, relaxed and feeble becomes full, strong and florid
